McAskile-Clark Nuptials Observed

A wedding of much interest was solemnized in the Anglican Church, late Sunday afternoon, October 29th, when Dorothy Joyce, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Clark became the bride of Mr. Clifford Scobie McAskile, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. P. McAskile. Rev. Canon T. B. Winter officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Doris Tuttle. She chose for her bridal attire a frock fashioned of midnight blue silk crepe, with accessories to match. A corsage of American Beauty roses completed her ensemble. Her only ornament was a gold locket owned by her grandmother, and belonging in the family for several generations.

Miss Lillian Clark was her sister's bridesmaid and wore a teal blue gown and a corsage of roses.

The bridegroom was attended by Gnr. Royce Clark of the 91st Battery, Calgary. Mr. Albert Collier was usher.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. James Clark sang "All Love Be Thine."

Following the ceremony fifty relatives and close friends attended a reception and buffet lunch at the home of the bride's parents. A three-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table. Assisting in serving were Miss Hehl, Mrs. Finnegan and Mrs. J. Clark. Canon Winter proposed a toast to the bride as did Mr. Royce Clark, while Mr. McAskile proposed one to the bride's grandmother, Mrs. J. Carruthers, and welcomed his son's wife into his family.

The young couple will make their home in Vulcan.

Showers Held For October Bride

Miss Joyce Clark was the guest of honor, when the ladies of the Good Deeds W.I. held a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. James Morley on Thursday afternoon. Contests and musical selections were enjoyed. Miss Mae Morley rendered a piano solo, Mrs. J. Clark a vocal solo, and Miss Thelma Morley a solo. The many lovely gifts were presented to the guest of honor in a gaily decorated doll's carriage, wheeled in by little Miss Thelma Morley. Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Miss Hall.

A shower was recently held at the home of Mrs. G. C. Collier in honor of Miss Joyce Clark, whose marriage to Mr. Clifford McAskile took place on Oct. 29th. The house was tastefully decorated and many young friends of the bride-elect were present. Games and contests created much merriment, and vocal solos rendered by Mrs. Jim Clark and Miss Kay Stack, accompanied by Mrs. Pedersen, were greatly enjoyed.

Lunch was served, joint hostesses being Mrs. E. G. McPherson, Mrs. F. L. Simington and Miss Ruby Collier. After lunch Mrs. Jim Clark and Miss Ruby Collier presented Miss Clark with a gaily-decorated basket containing many lovely and useful gifts.

Province Will Again Provide Wreaths

The Alberta Provincial Government, as in previous years, is again purchasing, through the Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion, B. E.S.L., sufficient wreaths made by the Veterans Shops, Department of Pensions and National Health, in Alberta, to be placed upon all cenotaphs and memorials in the province.

The action of Premier Aberhart and his government in this connection is very much appreciated by the Canadian Legion, and returned men and their dependents.

The wreaths all bear a ribbon from the Alberta Government "In remembrance," and show that the government does recognize the sacrifice made by those who enlisted in the last war and sacrificed their lives for Canada.

The making of the wreaths will assist disabled men and their dependents.

The provincial government is assisting the carrying out of the objects of the fund, which are three-fold: Remembering those men who gave their all; to help disabled men who are able to earn a little in the making of the wreaths, and to create a fund in every locality in the province for the assistance of the men, and their dependents.

U.S.-Canadian Relations So Good Can't Be Better, Says Sen. Borah

Reply of Senator Borah to Letter From Mrs. O. L. McPherson Gets Publicity in U.S. Senate

Although Canadians are at times out of sympathy with the sentiments expressed by the isolationist leader, Senator Borah of Idaho, yet they can scarcely find fault with the Senator's sentiments regarding Canada which won such widespread publicity last week. His speech in the U.S. Senate was prompted by letters which he had received from Canadians, and to add a touch which is of special interest locally, the Canadian letter which evidently most impressed him was one received from Mrs. O. L. McPherson of Vulcan. In fact the speech which he gave in the Senate was a quotation from his letter of reply to Mrs. McPherson. He said in part: "The people of United States not only greatly respect and admire our Canadian neighbors, but trust them as few people ever trusted another people. Are not the relations between our countries without precedent; no fears, no hatred, no distrust on either side of the line? The people of the two countries will get along magnificently as they have in the past, if they are just permitted to go their own way and attend to their own business. My feeling is, let the people of United States and Canada alone.

"When I study the reciprocal agreement between United States and Canada, I conclude if anybody needs advice and counsel it is not Canada.

"You suggest I take certain steps . . . My influence is limited to a very sincere expression of my own views to wit: that the friendship of our peoples is solid as a rock, and that the border line between Canada and United States is one which statesmen cannot break down or damage. Let us travel the path we have so gloriously marked for our selves—peace, friendship and commerce, with just a little modification of our trade agreements, if you find it possible to let us have it. But we will not quarrel with you even about that."

Needless to say, Mrs. McPherson was surprised that her letter had been selected by Senator Borah, for a public reply. In her letter to him she had suggested that it might be a good idea for the senator to restrain some of the more hot-headed supporters of isolation in their oratory, because Canada was listening in. She felt that Anglo-American relations were too precious and too vital in the maintenance of civilization, to permit chance remarks of hot-headed folk on either side of the line to impair the genuine friendship.

Annual Poppy Day Saturday, Nov. 4th

Red Cross in Charge of Poppy Sales in Vulcan

"In Flanders' fields the poppies grow Between the crosses, row on row."

Remembrance Day brings before our minds the 60,000 of our Dominion's dead who laid down their lives in the cause of a fight for a freedom which has lasted for us during the past twenty years. Shall we break faith with these?

Though our minds turn towards those who enlisted to maintain the present struggle, crippled men of the previous war still remain with us and need our assistance in maintaining themselves. Shall we break faith with these?

Poppies this year go on sale on Saturday, November 4th, and will be handled in Vulcan by the Red Cross Society. Do your bit by buying a poppy on Saturday.

The Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, Brigadier W. W. Foster, has issued the following message for Poppy Day:

"Poppy Day—uniting us in remembrance, has this year the added significance of being observed whilst we, as a Nation, are at war.

"The veteran requires no reminder that all we have of freedom is due to those who, in bygone years, sacrificed themselves for our right to live freely. But, with freedom, and all that it implies, again the object of attack, the younger ones in our midst will on this occasion be better able to share the veteran's feeling, and the nature of the obligation that all of this generation are called upon to share.

"Veterans are proudly that, through long and difficult post-war years, they worked unceasingly to promote goodwill, that a lasting Peace might come, and equally so of the fact that the new threat to liberty found them again ready to serve in any capacity their country might require. Already many are on Active Service, either with defence or auxiliary forces, whilst others waiting for an opportunity stand a solid bulwark from coast to coast against overt acts, or the promotion of discontent and dissension intended to weaken Canada's determination to take her proper place in the great conflict which lies ahead.

"May I very humbly thank my comrades of the Legion for their wonderful contribution to the security and future well-being of our land, and extend to all those devoted men and women, who labor with them to make Poppy Day a real demonstration of Remembrance and Duty, the Legion's grateful thanks."

Mrs. Katherine Adeline Mitchell, Turner Valley, died in a Calgary hospital on Sunday, Oct. 29, at the age of 55 years. Mrs. Mitchell was an active church worker at Turner Valley and, before moving to Turner Valley, she resided at Vulcan for several years, where her husband, W. A. "Sandy" Mitchell, operated a garage. Mrs. Vern McLeod and Mrs. B. L. Lockhart wish to express their thanks to all who helped to make the Red Cross tea held on October 27th a success. More than one hundred guests called and a sum of thirty-two dollars was realized. This amount has been handed to the treasurer of the local Red Cross Society.

We heard that L. H. Stack and Pete McIntyre had a great time Friday and Saturday of last week patronizing all the afternoon teas in the country. Nice going, fellows.

Is it true that Doc Carson was out at Lake McGregor on Thursday? We know he was in the Reid Hill district Friday morning. Tough luck about the car Doc, but maybe the shooting was worth while.

Good to see Gordon Schenck roaming around town again for a few days. Welcome home, old top!

We hear that Jack Munro was looking pretty blue Friday night because there was no parcel in the mail for him. It's not Xmas yet, Jack.

Joe Collier, Bev. Lockhart, Mr. Chell and Harold McDannold had a vigorous game of table tennis at the Oddfellows' hall on Sunday. Whatcha puffing for, Joe?

Russell Carruther and Rudy Flynn dropped into the coffee shop Tuesday morning for the usual coffee. Rudy was evidently sore about something because he was shoving his teeth.

We noticed Ralph Pritchard on the water wagon this week.

The gym class on Monday night was a howling success. Fifteen of the gang turned out and were put through their paces by Russell Collier. Come on over, you fellows, and oil those rusty hinges.

Garnet Discher turned out with the boys at gym class Monday night. We are sorry to hear you are leaving us again so soon, Garnet. All the luck in the world old bean.

We got quite a bang out of the young gang Wednesday morning trying to supply an alibi where they were Halloween night. According to them, they were all perfect little angels that night.

I SAW—Harry Martin plowing through the back lane with his jalopy . . . Harold Stephenson banging away at the typewriter with two fingers . . . Ford Fisher using the old elbow polishing a car . . . Lorne Leverington still trying to win a heart game . . . Roy Patriquin and Bob Martin watching the boys at the gym do their stuff . . . Glen Dahl and Siler heading north on a hunting trip . . . Bernard Gay and his covered wagon cruising around . . . Some strange gings on up the back alley Halloween night . . . Boyd McKay all dressed up and evidently with somewhere to go . . . Art, Roy and Charlie having a family reunion in front of the club . . . Jim McRoberts giving some fatherly advice to Shorty Ottewill . . . The mechanics from Brown's Garage kidding J. D. Wray about something . . . Clay Snow reading the newspaper over Boyd's shoulder at the show Tuesday night.

Perpetual Soliciting

IT has been suggested that the public would be immensely relieved if there could be some central agency to take care of all soliciting for war funds.

But there is little doubt that the eternal soliciting for different causes, all more or less allied with war work, is going to be wearing on the endurance of those who are asked to contribute to everything. Whether any central body could be persuaded to collect wholesale, and then distribute the funds as equitably as possible, is very doubtful.

As the war progresses, more causes are bound to develop. The habit was formed in the last war, and has not died out. An ideal system would be for the government to impose sufficient tax to cover everything. All the thousand and one causes that leap into being overnight, every one of which is worthy in itself. But coming every day, they create an unbelievable strain on individual resources.

Moreover, every "cause" has its own headquarters, its own secretarial staffs, its own paid labor in addition to the army of volunteers. It is often a question how much of the money extracted from the public, actually goes to the cause for which collections were made. Untold sums of money were wafted away on the wind of public generosity and sympathy in the last war. No accounting was demanded nor even expected, and such a basis of unquestioning giving is all too apt to pave the way for exploiters.

No one wishes to be ungenerous or censorious. The old slogan "Give till it hurts" has a very real meaning, particularly in down town business sections. As said before, every cause seems worthy in itself, and it is always embarrassing to have to say "No." But there are likely to spring up in time, drives for machine guns, aircraft, refugees, soldiers' dependents and on and on, which should definitely be the responsibility of the government, and not dependent on house to house canvassing.

Certain organizations, such as the Red Cross, are in different category and the public expects to contribute to these as a voluntary act, quite apart from the taxation imposed for the conduct of the war.

It is a fact that this country is entering the war in a much less prosperous state than preceded the war of 1914. We have been through from a nine-year "White" war of depression and attrition into a "Red" war of bloodshed. But the white war has drained resources, and the easy giving of the years of 1914-1918 seems at present impossible. For that reason it is desirable that all war causes be centralized with the government to as great a degree as possible, in order to eliminate unnecessary overhead, and that in all cases the strictest care be taken that there be no waste, no overlapping and no unauthorized canvassing.

The Science of Farming

(From The High-River Times)

IN the organization of a Calf Club in this district, another forward step has been taken to extend the experience of farm young people. The Junior Grain Club has already proved itself, and the calf club is now making a start in the field of animal husbandry. This seems to be a favorable year for livestock, with a sufficiency of feed, and fair assurance of profitable market. Good returns are always a strong incentive to best effort.

An important condition of membership in the Calf Club is the individual duties which it imposes. The youthful owner is, himself or herself, responsible for the systematic care and feeding of the animal, and the results assembled at the showing of calves in the spring will reflect to a great degree, the type of care during the winter.

There will doubtless be different methods of feeding, different types of feed used. Some of the members of the club may already have a fair working knowledge of stock feeding. With others it may be an entirely new adventure. In any event, the experience will be most beneficial, and educational, advancing the young people along lines of intelligent farm work.

On most well-organized farms, animal husbandry and field husbandry supplement each other. Grain which may be a loss on the market, can be turned to profit when used to fatten stock. If the Calf Club member makes fullest use of his opportunities, he will check carefully on all costs of feeding, and should emerge with valuable data on his season's work. His field of agricultural interest will be broadened.

There should be general commendation of all those who sponsor these junior farm clubs, whether it be in the line of grain raising or stock feeding. Anything which advances farm interests and farm standards advances the progress of Canadian industry as a whole.

Along these same lines, the U.F.A. directorate recently urged that certain funds in possession of the government, be used to help defray expenses of the young people anxious to attend the farm schools which are to be conducted through the province. The funds to which the U.F.A. referred were a left-over from a Canadian Wheat Board transaction of 1929 still in the hands of the Alberta government. The farm schools are to be held at many points in the province for a period of two or three weeks under combined arrangement of the Youth Employment council and the Alberta University Dept. of Extension. The courses include all types of farm husbandry and home economics. Many young

Pertinent Topics

DISCUSSED BY H. C.

Wonder if Messrs Lapointe and Cardell will recall now that the election is over, what excellent use they made against Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen of the ammunition Duplessis has been using against them? On the eve of one election they invented a war with Turkey so they could trot out the ogre of conscription. Little did they dream the time would come when the weapons they used with such deadly results could and would be used against themselves.

Duplessis' defeat may mean that he is not so dexterous as they, or that this was not a fit occasion for the use of such tactics, but we hope it means that the people there have tired of being "played." The news of his defeat was welcomed everywhere except in his own camp. He thought to play smart politics by going to the country ahead of time and using the exigencies of the occasion to his own advantage, regardless of the effect his return would have abroad as well as at home. He got his answer—a clear, distinct "O, no you don't."

The slow-down is the most recent tactic of the C.I.O. It takes the place of the sit-down, and has the advantage that it is not a strike and is hard to detect. Fifty thousand men in Chryslerers were thrown out of employment because of it. The United States will never have prosperity until the authorities sit down on the slow-down and outlaw the unions that promote all those schemes to paralyze industry. Under the new system a few men can do the trick. Chryslerers dismissed 110 men and the union demanded their reinstatement. It is a downward movement for labor as well as industry—sit down, slow down, shut down. Some time there will be a show down.

Adverse exchange on Canadian money in the United States promised improvement in the Canadian fuel industry, but in Saskatchewan the C.I.O. is fighting for control of labor in the lignite fields. It is using its usual methods and according to an Estevan despatch neither the provincial nor federal government is doing anything practical to prevent them. This is no time to allow curtailment of production, but this is the time that union leaders seize to gain victories for themselves.

Minnesota has many Scandinavians and they have some of their own compatriots representing them in Washington. They were isolationists, but when Stalin began to threaten Baltic countries, a correspondent wrote that they began to sweat and he does not believe it was due to October weather. The Russian alliance with Germany has had far-reaching effects.

A cable conveys the report that Hitler has taken up pistol practice. In view of the danger, we beg of him not to engage in it while anyone else is around, except perhaps Von Ribbentrop.

Hitler says that although Russia and Germany are collaborating, their ideologies are unchanged. The main idea in their ideologies is robbery under arms.

There is quite a similarity between the attitude of Italy today and that of 1914. Then she was an ally of Germany, but declared neutrality, lining up later on with the Allies. Mussolini, then an editor, wrote strongly for neutrality then suddenly switched to participation with Britain and France. He may do so again.

Hitler regards Mussolini as his state mate.

Senility does not explain Lloyd George's attitude. It stems from the time when he was unhorsed as leader of the Coalition government. Resentment is the motive power that drives him to insist upon a peace conference with men whose word is worthless.

In trying to prove that a British submarine sank the Athenia, Dr. Goebbels says Winston Churchill forbade Germans sailing on her so there would be no unpleasant witnesses, to which the Donaldson Line replied that there were twenty-three Germans and five Danzigers on the boat. What happened, in our estimation, is that she was sunk by a German sub without orders from the Nazi government. What impels us to this view is that if she were sunk under orders the Germans themselves would have boasted of it as they did when the Lusitania was sunk.

Seventy-five United Church clergymen find themselves, not without pain and regret, unable to approve of this war. They say they are not trying to escape or evade their duty as citizens and will do service just as exacting as soldiers so long as it does not contribute to war effort. If they know what this means they know more than we do.

What citizen duty can they perform more taxing, difficult and dangerous than military service? This is what they offer to do but only if it does not aid war effort. They apparently were aware of the seriousness of the position they were taking. Conscientious objectors need not bother their heads about military service unless there is conscription, but they may not take any action calculated to hinder war effort. This they have done. The offer to do some vague citizen duty is only an attempt to escape the consequence.

They are against crime too. Why not another manifesto declaring their opposition to crime, adding that they will not fight against it but will do citizen duty more taxing, difficult and dangerous than police duty; provided it does not aid in suppressing crime?

Several of them were last year very much opposed to the British government for not going to the defence of Czechoslovakia, and we can think of nothing that has happened since to change their attitude except the intrusion of Russia.

If Hitler hears about the manifesto he will give it his blessing. He does not approve of this war either. Not that he is against war as he told Sir Neville Henderson he would prefer war now than five years hence when he will be five years older, but this is not the one he wanted.

people would find inspiration and a more intelligent approach to farm work through the instruction. But many unfortunately will be unable to afford the cost. Assistance through this government farm fund seems a worthy expenditure.

Interesting News Of The Province

Preliminary figures indicate that oil production in Turner Valley will set a new record for the year to date. An estimated total yield of 7,500,000 barrels is announced, compared with last year's all time record of 6,422,039 barrels.

Onset of winter so early in the year gave the provincial works department an opportunity to try out new snow-clearing equipment recently purchased at a cost of $12,000. Replacements for obsolete equipment consists of two four-wheel drive trucks fitted with sweeping V plows. Reconstruction work was halted by the snowfall.

W. L. Mackenzie King in his radio address on Friday evening said the war was a crusade to save Christian civilization, the Nazi doctrine being the antithesis of what is found in the Christian gospel. He said: "Contrary to every wish I have ever entertained, I have been compelled to believe that only by destruction of Nazism and resistance to ruthless aggression can the nations of the commonwealth hope to enjoy the liberty which is their under the British crown and the world be spared descent to a new and terrible age of barbarism."

ABDUCTOR AT LARGE

R.C.M.P. are looking for a man Armstrong, charged with abduction of a 12-year-old boy George Connor. The man may be on a threshing outfit and is described as being 26 years of age, 6 feet tall, brown hair, blue eyes, tooth missing from front upper jaw. Tattoo marks include "mother" on right arm at shoulder; on right forearm, a scroll with words "father, snake" on left arm a man and mother wrestling. He was wearing a gray shirt with zipper, brown pants and brown overcoat. The boy, Connor, is about 4' 8", stout build, fair hair, brown eyes, good teeth, round face. He was wearing navy shorts and colored cotton jersey.

The boy's mother is a widow, and greatly upset about the abduction. The man is described as an immoral character, and his apprehension is desired without delay.

U.S. Senate Repeal Of Arms Embargo

Senatorial Vote Preponderately Favors Sale of U.S. Products of Any Kind to Belligerents

By a 63 to 30 vote the United States Senate voted for repeal of the arms embargo, approved the new Neutrality bill, and sent it to the House of Representatives where it is expected it will find endorsement.

The bill permits European belligerents to buy U.S. products of any kind, with the restriction that in general they must pay cash, borrow no money in United States, and must provide foreign ships for the transportation of their purchases.

The bill is regarded as being of special aid to the Allies owing to Britain's control of the Atlantic Ocean.

An intention of great moment, to the American people, is the laying down of conditions designed to prevent incidents likely to inflame public opinion or drag the country into the conflict. United States ships are forbidden to sail for belligerent ports in the danger zones or to enter combat areas.

Canadian Ports Exempt

Under provisions of the bill Canadian, ocean ports are exempt from restrictions and ordinary inland commerce between U.S.A. and Canada by air, rail or water would be carried on.

Arms can be sold to all countries, but the conditions of legislation are an undoubted advantage to the Allies.

Safeguards

The president is empowered to establish danger zones round either belligerent or neutral ports, and he may modify these at will. United States citizens are forbidden to extend credit to any belligerent states or its agency. They are forbidden to solicit for funds except for medical aid, food or clothing for sufferers. Americans are forbidden to travel on belligerent ships. A U.S. merchant vessel must carry only small arms. The Munitions Board is authorized to control the manufacture and export of arms through licenses. Violation of shipping and title transfer sections are punishable by a maximum of $50,000 and five years' imprisonment. Violations of other sections bring $10,000 fine.

Although British comment is cautious, until the new legislation has been approved by Congress, the final outcome will mean a vast war storehouse on the American continent. It is expected that 300 planes will move out as a first British order, and the Allies have placed further orders for 6,000 war planes and 1,000 submarine chasers.

Alberta Suffers Worst By Embargo

Other Provinces Have Disposed of Most of Grain But Only 50% of Alberta Wheat in Marketable Channels

Officials of the Alberta Wheat Pool, commenting on the current harvest season, pointed out the 1939 season has been definitely "bad." The crop, the heaviest since 1932, was late, difficult to handle and as the grand obstacle, the embargo on shipments to Fort William hit this province harder than either Saskatchewan or Manitoba.

Owing to weather and geographic position, Manitoba completed threshing first and to date has marketed 92.2 per cent, or 47,000,000 bushels of her marketable crop. Saskatchewan has 78.3 per cent, or 155,000,000 bushels in elevators, while Alberta's best effort in the face of the embargo on shipments east, and inclement weather of five weeks, has put only 50 per cent of her crop into marketable channels.

Half on Farms

As wheat harvesting is now thought to be from 90 to 95 per cent completed, the figures would indicate that practically one-half the 1939 output is being held back on the farm for various reasons.

In the matter of storage Saskatchewan terminals and elevators, even in the drouth areas, are filled. Alberta elevator companies, paying the charges themselves, have been making inter-station shipments within the province, and in some instances filling houses that have not been utilized for several seasons.

The board's order regarding wheat shipments, specifies that board wheat sent to Vancouver must be straight grades of No. 1 Hard, 1 and 2 Northern and 1 and 2 C.W. Garnet in "the six cent per hundred pounds and higher freight differential in favor of Vancouver."

"I don't believe" even her music teacher can "make anything out of Marie's voice." "You're mistaken. He has made over a hundred dollars out of it already."

Experiences In Escaping From Torpedoed Athenia

Mrs. Stewart, Peace River, Head of W.I., Tells Delegates of Her Escape From Athenia to City of Flint

When Mr. and Mrs. William Stewart of Peace River, returned home after surviving the Athenia disaster, they were greeted at the station by a general turnout of townspeople. One friend welcomed Mrs. Stewart reproachfully, saying: "Why I have lost more pounds than you have, just worrying about you."

Mrs. Stewart is president of the provincial W. I., well known to all members of the organization and at the recent convention in Edmonton she was persuaded to give a little description of the ordeals experienced by survivors of the Athenia disaster. The story, relayed third hand, loses in the telling, and may slip a little in accuracy, but here it is as recalled:

On the evening when the Athenia was torpedoed, Mrs. Stewart had not been feeling well, and decided to have dinner in her room. When the crash came the dishes scattered in every direction. She made two quick moves, reaching for life preservers for herself and her husband who was in the dining room, and wrapping a rug from the bed round herself. Just before the lights went out she grabbed a flashlight which they had. Everything seemed to happen instantaneously. Making her way out of the corridor groping for the doors to rouse everyone. The flashlight helped, and turning it down the corridor the light fell on the people who were pouring from the dining room. One of the first was her husband, and it was a great stroke of fortune to be brought together so quickly.

As the crowds lined up for the life boats, the boat to which they were assigned stuck by one end and could not swing free. Mr. Stewart's husky, trusty Alberta jackknife came into play, to get the boat swinging clear. They rowed as quickly as possible away from the Athenia, and sighted in the distance another vessel, all lighted and riding very high in the water. "The highest boat we ever saw," said Mrs. Stewart.

Before they reached this refuge, there was a terrifying scraping against the bottom of their boat, which they believed was the submarine. Later they thought they saw its shadowy outline some distance off, but no damage was done their boat. However, when they got in the wash of the rescue vessel, the lifeboat was drawn toward the propeller which was high out of the water. Shouted warnings from the ship were of no help and they felt they were doomed. But the men braced the stout oak oars against the ship, a terrible strain of endurance both for men and oars. The next wave carried them past the sweep of the propeller, to a point where they could be taken aboard. But the next lifeboat was not so fortunate and was crushed under the propeller.

The trip home was made on the City of Flint and here all the facilities of the ship—though quite inadequate for the 200 or more unexpected guests—were placed at the disposal of the refugees. Every possible kindness was extended, and the sailors' supplies were ransacked for garments that could cover the Athenia victims, many of whom escaped only in night clothing. Mrs. Stewart was given a pair of outside bedroom slippers which she wore during the entire journey.

Sleeping accommodation was provided by stretching makeshift mattresses along the floors. The first night out there was very heavy weather, and the shattered nerves of some of the refugees threatened to snap. But ship's officers kept up constant patrol, reassuring the terrified passengers every few minutes, that "You're all right. It's just a little blow."

One of the most acute problems on the City of Flint was water, and the utmost economy in use of the water supply was required. Despite warnings, one passenger was found treating herself to a luxurious shower bath. When she was reproached, she was highly indignant, asserting her "rights" of comfort in transportation. The officer said to her gravely: "Well, madam, if you are not satisfied with what we can give you in transportation, we can lend you a lifeboat to go back and start again from where we took you on."

That, however, was only one unappreciative person in the army of grateful ones, who realized to what extent they had imposed on the ship supplies and routine. Before long, the fear and tension relaxed to the extent that they staged a salvage exhibition. They called it a "Sub-dub" show, and each displayed what they had managed to bring with them from the sinking Athenia. Top prize went to the woman who had saved her seal coat, and the comic prize went to the girl (quite a big girl too) who was wearing a sailor's enormous sweater as her only garment. A triangular piece had been cut out of the lower end and it had been sewed up to give her a sort of romper effect.

Red Cross Lip Stick

The scarcity of water brought with it the discomfort of dirty faces and ears, and a very unwashed feeling. So when the ship docked at Halifax, no more welcome sight could be imagined than the Red Cross workers arriving with soap and face powder and lipstick, and such womanly comforts. It made life seem almost normal and beautiful again.

Canadian railway officials were most kind and considerate in their treatment of the travelling refugees, many of whom had still many miles of travel after reaching Halifax. They showered upon the travellers every comfort which the trains afforded, and it was a wonderful feeling, said Mrs. Stewart, to reach the security of land and home.

The estate of James Richardson of Winnipeg was $3,432,412. He was head of the Richardson grain company.

Making an early start on the plans for 1940 tourist season, D. E. C. Campbell, provincial director of publicity, is a Spokane visitor to the Pacific North West Tourist association convention. Representing Alberta, Mr. Campbell will contact officials of the tourist trade from many United States points and sell the advantages of Alberta as a tourist resort to the convention. 1940 is expected to be a bumper tourist year owing to the war situation having cut off trans-Atlantic travel.

L.W. Brockington Retires From CBC

It is with regret that the Canadian public loses the service of L. W. Brockington, K.C., as chairman of the CBC.

In presenting his resignation to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Mr. Brockington said:

"What public work I have been able to do has been made possible by my employers and clients, the North-West Grain Dealers' Association, who with typical generosity have permitted me to devote a great deal of their time to the performance of my public duties."

He adds: "The governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation have endeavored to resolve their conception of their duties into progressive action by the building of national stations, the retention of high-power facilities in the control and ownership of the people of Canada, and the gradual development of national radio as an instrument of national unity, entertainment and enlightenment. In our effort to advance these objects, to protect the public domain, to defend freedom of speech and to establish as far as possible equality before the microphone, we have always known that we have been able to rely upon your goodwill and active support."

In commenting on Mr. Brockington's work with the CBC, the Winnipeg Free Press says editorially:

"The record of his achievements in this field, from 1936 to 1939, is a remarkable one. When he and his board took office only a small beginning had been made in setting up our national radio. Powerful opposition had asserted itself, and the requisite vigor and leadership had been lacking to implement the clear wish of the public. The new Broadcasting Act separated the CBC from direct government control, and the appointment of a strong board of governors and a chairman who rapidly and properly became the keystone of the new structure changed the whole aspect of public broadcasting in this country."

The Winnipeg Tribune says in an editorial:

"As was made clear in the exchange of correspondence between himself and the Prime Minister, it was only through the sacrifice of his own time and the co-operation of his clients that Mr. Brockington had been enabled to act as chairman throughout the three first and formative years of the commission's existence. Mr. Brockington doubtless felt called upon to make this sacrifice in order that the CBC might be assisted to "get on its legs," as it were, and would have retired in any case, even had war not broken out.

*UNITY OF CANADA

*NATIONAL UNITY is vital to success of Canada's War Effort

This series of advertisements was initiated many months prior to the outbreak of war. Its theme "Unity of Canada" was prophetic; a message that today is more vital than ever to all Canadians.

For in Unity lies the strength of the Dominion, and we, of the Automotive Industries, accept our full responsibility in working as well as writing towards this end.

Now, more than ever before, our plants and highly specialized equipment are Dominion assets; our skilled workmen, vital cogs in the wartime industrial set-up in which the production of units of transport looms more important than ever.

So remember, when you buy a Canadian-Built car, you are helping support an industry that distributes more than $22,000,000.00 in wages and salaries to many thousand families dependent on the industry itself. Add to these the families that are supported by industries supplying raw and finished materials to the Automotive manufacturers, and you get an idea of what this activity means to the Canadian Home Market.

A busy Automotive Industry in wartime is a live asset indeed—a truly national war enterprise.

NEW BRUNSWICK OFFERS EVERY AID IN EMPIRE'S STRUGGLE

"In the gigantic struggle upon which Canada has embarked by the side of the Mother Country, New Brunswick offers every assistance in the hope that her contribution will so help to strengthen the hand of the British Empire that she and her allies will emerge victorious over the forces of lawlessness and aggression. Worthy sons of courageous fathers who served King and Country in the Great War are already offering themselves in their thousands. The great natural resources of New Brunswick, her farm products, the rich harvest of her forests, her fish, her minerals, are at the disposal of His Majesty. Her all-year ocean port of Saint John stands ready to handle the great stream of goods which will pour through from all over Canada to help the Motherland in her hour of great necessity. New Brunswick in the past has taken second place to none in her loyalty to the British flag and the British tradition—she is prepared to demonstrate this once more to the world."

Remembrance Day Service

Memorial Hall, Vulcan
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 11th, 1939

Assembly: 10:45 a.m.

Address by Comrade Hugh C. Farthing, B.A., K.C.,
 Member of Alberta Provincial Council, Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League

"God Save The King"

The Public is Cordially Invited to join Legion Members in their Annual Memorial Service

Bridge and Whist under auspices of Vulcan Branch, Canadian Red Cross Society, Friday, Nov. 10, at 8:30 p.m. sharp

The Alberta Provincial Government as in previous years, is again purchasing, through the Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., sufficient wreaths made by the Veterans Shops, Department of Pensions and National Health in Alberta, to be placed upon all Cenotaphs and Memorials in the province. The action of Premier Aberhart, and his government, in this connection, is very much appreciated by the Canadian Legion, and returned men and their dependents. The wreaths all bear a ribbon from the Alberta Government "In Remembrance," and show that the Government does recognize the sacrifice made by those soldiers who enlisted in the last war, and sacrificed their lives for Canada.

Americans Would Fight If Canada Were Invaded

In Survey of Institute of Public Opinion, 73% of Americans Would be Willing To Aid Dominion

In a recent survey made by the American Institute of Public Opinion, the returns showed that 73% of Americans would fight to defend Canada if it were invaded. The same majority would go to the aid of Cuba, the Bahamas, Mexico or any country commanding approaches to the Panama canal.

Finally a small majority of 53% believe that United States should enter a war to defend Brazil, Chile or any other South American nation from European assault.

Although any danger of actual effective invasion of this continent seems very remote, the survey does indicate public resentment of any attempt to extend European system to American continents. There is also decisive support to the Roosevelt pledge to aid Canada.

The sentiment toward the South American countries has been greatly strengthened since the meeting of 21 American republics in Panama, but there is still a strong sentiment that the South American countries are too far away to present a great military threat to the safety of North America. There is also the belief that South America should look after its own defense. But concern for South America has advanced surprisingly since German-Italian-Russian activity in Europe.

"In our view, while Hitler must be smashed, we must also prevent the recurrence of the causes which led to Hitler. That is no longer possible in a capitalist society. We must take the risk of rebuilding European foundations; to this we see no alternative. Unless we do so all the inherent causes of war will still persist in the European system. Hitler is a symptom of a disease. He is not himself the disease. A wise peace depends fundamentally upon that understanding."—By Harold J. Laski, Professor of Political Science in the London School of Economics, in New York Nation.

U.F.A. Directorate Lift Wheat Limit

Ask Removal of 5000 Bushel Maximum; Suggest Officers Come Up From Ranks; Ask Large Unit Vote

Directors of U.F.A. and U.F.W.A. meeting in joint session in Calgary last week, urged the Dominion government to remove the 5000 bushel individual limit on deliveries under Canadian Wheat Board. A resolution was sent to Edmonton.

Because of the vital effect of British prices on Canadian agriculture, the joint meeting approved a resolution urging producer representation on the federal agricultural supply committee at Ottawa.

The agricultural supply committee, a wartime body, is the co-ordinating agent of the British cereals committee looking after purchases of grain and other farm products at fixed prices.

A resolution to be forwarded to Hon. Norman Rogers, federal minister of national defence, expressed the U.F.A. executive's "strong conviction" that the present method of selecting officers for the army, largely through training courses for university degree holders, should be modified and provision made to select officers from the ranks. They added that there was no condemnation of the present system of training officers, but pointed out that attendance at university is not necessarily proof of fitness for leadership. It also stated that many agriculturists skilled in machinery, would be valuable to mechanized troops.

A resolution was also forwarded to the provincial government in regard to the present large school units. The directors requested the government amend the Alberta School Act so that after five years, if large school units prove unsatisfactory, ratepayers might vote on the question of reverting to smaller units. Membership has increased by 1650 since last year.

The U.F.A. convention will be held in Edmonton on Jan. 16 to 19.
